- 7 ernment, nongovernmental organizations, and the pri-
- 8 vate sector.
- 9 (2) Access to current, accurate, uniform, and
- standards-based geospatial information, tools, and
- 11 training to characterize the United States coastal re-

1	gion is critical for public safety and for the environ-
2	ment, infrastructure, and economy of the United
3	States.
4	(3) More than half of all people of the United
5	States (153,000,000) currently live on or near a coast
6	and an additional 12,000,000 are expected in the next
7	decade.
8	(4) Coastal counties in the United States average
9	300 persons per square mile, compared with the na-
10	tional average of 98.
11	(5) On a typical day, more than 1,540 permits
12	for construction of single-family homes are issued in
13	coastal counties, combined with other commercial, re-
14	tail, and institutional construction to support this
15	population.
16	(6) Over half of the economic productivity of the
17	United States is located within coastal regions.
18	(7) Highly accurate, high-resolution remote sens-
19	ing and other geospatial data play an increasingly
20	important role in decision making and management
21	of the coastal zone and economy, including for—
22	(A) flood and coastal storm surge pre-
23	diction;
